The Hereford Advantage:

ElmLodge has focused on magnifying the benefits of Polled Hereford genetics for the past four decades. A staple in the world wide commercial cowherd the Hereford breed offers unmatched feed efficiency, fertility, docility and hardiness. These characteristics put Hereford cross females on a pedestal as the problem free, low maintenance most economically sound mother cow in the business. We have sourced the world to find the genetics that offer the highest predictability for success and profit. The herdbulls on offer are some of the best you'll find anywhere in North America with desirable birth weights, adequate growth and extra thickness. As fads come and go we have always steered our breeding program towards ideals for the environment and feel we are as close to that as ever before. These bulls offered are mothered by the top end of the herd and many express the thickness to rival of any of the continental breeds. The females offered represent a broad cross section of the herd and many are geared toward the commercial sector, while others will make nice replacements for any herd and looming amongst the lot of them are a couple of big time opportunities where the sky is the limit. Hereford genetics strong and steady within breed, absolutely dynamite as a cross breed alternative.

Proof: DNA testing shows our herdbulls lead the industry in profitable traits.

Next Big Thing is 7 out of 8 stars for feed efficiency and 5 out of 6 stars for tenderness.

United is also 7 out of 8 stars for feed efficiency.

Paycheck has tested homozygous "TT" for the Leptin gene that indicates doability.

Red and Black Simmental: The "NEW" Simmental

Simmental cattle were first introduced to Indian River soil about 13 years ago where they immediately impressed with extra pounds at weaning thanks to extra milk. As we refined the cowherd and added more generations of red and black influenced genetics we have developed some of the most impressive "Spread" cattle in the business. This spread from Birth to weaning and then yearling is extremely difficult to capture in most breeds as lower birth weights most times indicate lower weaning weights while the reverse is also true as higher performance usually comes with higher birth weights. Just ask me about calving Simmental cows, what used to be a hardship is now an absolute pleasure and needs to be experienced to truly appreciate the extra benefits like smaller calves and more vigour. The Simmental breed has never been as popular with the bull sales in western Canada setting new records for sales surpassing every other breed by a huge margin. Due to a very successful fall and winter sale season we are offering a small number but rest assured they of high quality.

The new Simmental is solid coloured, easy keeping, polled, a pleasure at calving time and still brings added pounds to the scales at weaning.

Customers tell us:

Keith Reeds bought a red Simmental last spring and says his calves out of his first calf heifers were small, lively and he'll be using that bull as long as he can on his first timers.

Glenn Darling bought a black bull and recently topped the county stocker sale with 600 weight calves bringing $1.40/lb. Congrats Glenn your great management.

Mother of the $10,000 Shania cow and a number of other good ones, like the best calf of '09 at side. Needs a little TLC over winter to get a couple more great ones. Bred to Paycheck on April 22/09 (Same cross as Shania)

Welcome to our spring grastime open house and private treaty bull and female sale. After planning for an auction we've changed the format as brisk winter bull and female sales have allowed us to offer these cattle in a more relaxed setting reducing labour for us and taking some of the buying pressure off new or inexperienced breeders. Each lot will be priced individually as we see fits under current commercial and/or purebred market conditions. These prices will be on a handout sale day and business will take place on a first come first served basis. We'll have lunch for you when you arrive after noon and refreshments for all ages will be available throughout the day. If you have any questions prior, during or even after about the cattle available, feel free to contact Billy, Juanita, Grant or Mary.
